Dan Fleming

Managing Director of River Cities Capital Funds

Dan is Managing Director of River Cities Capital Funds, a Cincinnati-based private equity firm that invests in high-growth, privately held healthcare and software companies. He began his private equity career in 1996 and joined River Cities in 2001. He has been involved in a diverse set of investments including business and marketing services, healthcare services, enterprise software and Software-as-a-Service applications. He also serves as president of the firm's management company.

Prior to his career in private equity, Dan held various technically oriented positions including design engineering at Kodak and operations management with Owens-Illinois and Procter & Gamble. He also worked in strategic consulting with Towers Perrin. Upon returning to Cincinnati after business school, he rejoined P&G where he held several positions in financial analysis and strategic planning for the company.

Dan graduated from The Ohio State University with a BS in Engineering in 1986 and obtained an MBA from the Harvard Business School in 1991 with an emphasis in Finance and Business Strategy.

Dan is on the board of trustees of Cincinnati Works, a non-profit that offers job development services, and also volunteers as a mentor with City Gospel Mission. He is a member of the Impact Cabinet of the United Way of Greater Cincinnati and serves on the advisory board of the Greenlight Foundation. Dan is also a founding member and on the board of VentureOhio, a statewide organization for investors and entrepreneurs who are building high growth companies in Ohio.

Dan and his wife Susan have two daughters, Megan and Lauren, and reside in Loveland, OH.
